THIRD KENTUCKY VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

The Third Regiment, Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, was organized at Camp Dick Robinson, under Colonel Thomas E. Bramlette, and mustered into the United States service on the 8th day of October, 1861, by General George H. Thomas, United States Mustering Officer, and it has marched as follows: On September 18th, 1861, to Lexington, Kentucky; October 1st, to Camp Dick Robinson; October 23d, to Round Stone Creek, Rockcastle county, Kentucky, and thence to Crab Orchard; on November 1st, to Somerset; November 13th, to A. R. West's, in Wayne county, Kentucky; 14th, returned to Camp Wolford, near Somerset; on November 19th, to Columbia, Kentucky, its effective strength then being a little over five hundred. The regiment was much reduced by sickness at Columbia, and marched from there, January 7th, 1862, with less than three hundred effective men, to the mouth of Rennick Creek, Cumberland county, Kentucky. On January 16th it marched to the mouth of Greasy Creek, Russell county, Kentucky. Here the health of the Regiment improved rapidly, and on the 18th day of March it embarked on steamers for Nashville, Tennessee, about nine hundred strong. On March 29th it marched, by way of Franklin, Columbia, Waynesboro, and Savannah, Tennessee, to the field of Shiloh, where it arrived on the night of April 7th. From there it moved, by gradual approaches, to Corinth, Mississippi, and invested that place. On June 2d it marched, by way of Iuka, Mississippi, to Tusculum, Alabama, and from thence, by way of Courtland, Decatur, Mooresville, and Huntsville, Alabama, and Fayetteville, Shelbyville, and Winchester, Tennessee, to Decherd's Station, where it arrived July 22d. Remaining at this place until August 14th, it then marched, by way of Manchester, to Vervilla, Tennessee. On August 24th it marched to Altamont, and returned to Vervilla on the 26th. On the 27th it went to McMinnville; on September 3d it marched in the direction of Murfreesboro, and continued the march through Murfreesboro, Nashville, and Gallatin, Tennessee, and Franklin, Kentucky, to Bowling Green, where it arrived September 11th. It marched from there on the 16th, by way of Bell's Tavern, Munfordsville, Cave City, Bacon Creek Bridge, Elizabethtown, and West Point, to Louisville, Kentucky, where it arrived September 26th. October 1st it marched, by way of Mt. Washington, Bardstown, Glennville, Springfield, Haysville, Perryville, Danville, Stanford, Crab Orchard, and Mt. Vernon, to Round Stone Creek. October 22d it marched back, by way of Mt. Vernon, Crab Orchard, Stanford, Hustonville, and Liberty, to Columbia, Kentucky, where it arrived October 25th. On the 30th it marched, by way of Edmonton and Scottsville, Kentucky, and Gallatin, Tennessee, to Silver Springs, Tennessee, where it arrived November 10th, 1862. On the 15th it went to Lebanon in pursuit of Morgan, and returned to Silver Springs on the 16th. On the 19th of November it marched to Stone River, and on the 25th to Nashville. Remaining there until December 26th, it then marched to Murfreesboro, where it remained, doing fatigue duty and foraging, until June 24th, 1863, when it marched to Manchester and Hillsboro. It remained at the latter place until August 16th, when it marched across the Cumberland Mountains, by way of Pelham and Tracy City, to Thurman, in the Sequatchie Valley. On September 1st it marched, by way of Jasper, Shell Mound, Chattanooga, Lee & Gordon's Mills, to the field of Chickamauga, Georgia, and from thence back to Chattanooga.

On its return from the pursuit of the enemy after the battle of Mission Ridge, it marched to Knoxville; thence to Strawberry Plains and back to Loudon, where it remained on fatigue duty until April 18th, 1864, when it marched, by way of Sweetwater, Athens, Charleston, and Calhoun, to Cleveland. On May 3d it commenced its movements against the enemy stationed at Dalton, Georgia. It marched, by way of Blue Springs, Red Clay, and Catoosa Springs, to the summit of Rocky Face Mountain. On May 13th, it marched, by way of Dalton, to Resaca, and, on the 16th, by way of Calhoun, Georgia, and Adairsville, to Kingston. On the 23d it marched on the Dallas road to Pumpkin Vine Creek, and skirmished around Dallas and the field of New Hope, on Pumpkin Vine, until June 5th, and, on the 6th, began moving gradually around to the left, by way of Ackworth Station, skirmishing and fortifying night and day. Proceeding, by way of Muddy Branch and Cedar Mountain, it arrived at the base of Kenesaw Mountain June 20th. It skirmished around Kenesaw Mountain until the battle of Kenesaw Mountain, in which the regiment participated. It skirmished around that part of the country until July 3d, when it marched, by way of Marietta, to Vining's Station, and, on the 9th July, marched to Roswell and forded the Chattahoochee river. On July 12th it went to a point on the Chattahoochee near Vining's Station, and, on the 13th, crossed that river five miles above Vining's Station. From there, skirmishing and fortifying continually, it proceeded, by way of Nancy's Creek, Buck Head, and Peachtree Creek, to within one and seven-eighths miles of Atlanta, where it took its position, and fortified it, on the right of the road leading from Atlanta to Peachtree Creek. It skirmished with the enemy continually during the siege of Atlanta, which lasted until August 25th, 1864. At midnight of August 25th it commenced the movement around to the right of Atlanta; crossed the Atlanta and Chattanooga railroad, between Atlanta and the Chattahoochee river, and marched towards Jonesboro; reached the Atlanta and Montgomery railroad fourteen miles below Atlanta, and destroyed the track for several miles; struck the Atlanta and Macon railroad near Rough and Ready, and marched down the same, destroying the railroad for eight miles; reached Jonesboro, and it was then relieved and marched back to Atlanta on 4th September.

On the 9th September it started by railroad for Nashville, Tennessee, and arrived there September 12th. It remained at Nashville doing picket and fatigue duty (and settling its business preparatory to being mustered out) until 6th October, when it proceeded by railroad for Louisville, where it was mustered out on the 18th day of October, 1864. A portion of this regiment re-enlisted as veterans in the month of March, 1864. They remained with the regiment until September 15th, 1864, when such of them as had survived the casualties of war, were, at Nashville, on that date, transferred to the 1st Kentucky Battery.

The 3d Regiment Kentucky Infantry participated in the following named battles and skirmishes, in which loss was sustained, viz: Waynesboro. Shiloh, Corinth, Mississippi, May 24th, 1862; McMinnville, Tennessee; Munfordsville, Kentucky, September 21st, 1862; Bardstown and Perryville, Kentucky; Stewart's Creek, Tennessee, December 29th, 1862; Stone River, December 31st, 1862, and January 1st and 2d of 1863; Chickamauga, September 20th, 1863; Mission Ridge, November 23d, 24th, and 25th, 1863; Rocky Face Ridge, May 9th, 1864; Resaca, Georgia, May 14th, 1864; Pumpkin Vine Creek, May and June, 1864; Cedar Mountain, June 15th, 1864; Muddy Branch, June 18th; Kenesaw Mountain, June 20th and 21st; Kenesaw Mountain, June 27th, 1864; Nancy's Creek, July 18th, 1864; Peachtree Creek, July 20th; Atlanta, July and August of 1864.
