14 graves marked with fieldstones and no inscriptions.
   One grave is that of a baby girl who died near here as her family was traveling through in the very early years. For a long time her family sent money to keep up her grave and place flowers on it.
   There are also many unmarked Native-American graves here, which may have first been an Indian burial ground, as Indian beads, cloth, etc., were found here in the distant past.
