Notes for MARTHA ANN CHUMBLEY:

Source: Cyndi from Chumbley-L Mail list. In an interview of Martha Chumbley Thomas Andrews, "When she was three years of age her parents moved to Russell County, Kentucky, a distance of about thirty miles. (From Pulaski Co., Ky.) She remembers very distinctly this trip as her father owned a very stubborn mule that he wanted to take along. The only member of the family that could ride him was her father and as the mule would not lead when tied to the wagon the only thing was for her father to ride the mule. As they made ready to start Martha Ann set up a cry to ride with her father on the mule. At last her wish was granted, so for this reason she remembers this trip very well. Her first school was built of logs; the roof was made of branches and sod placed over this; the logs were chinked with mud. A long broad board rested on the pegs inserted in the logs along two side of the room." (Cyndi notes, the rest of the interview is not included as the page ends and evidently the person copying for some reason didn't think I would want the rest).

Notes for MILES LEROY "ROY" QUIMBEY:

"Many stories are told about him and none of them were good. He did serve time in prison but am not sure for what offense. He shot a man for cheating him out of money believed to be at a card game. He killed a man he caught in bed with his wife and paid a man money to bring him the scalp of someone who ran instead of staying to help him fight indians.

I was told by his niece that he always wore a big overcoat and a big hat and that is the way I remember him when he attended the funeral of his nephew Homer Quimby (my uncle) I was almost 10 years old and had never heard of him before (I think he had just gotten out of prison) and it was the only time I ever saw him. One of his half brothers, George, refused to attend his funeral until other family members convinced him that he should. George believed that Roy had hastened their fathers death. One of his nephews called him the meanest SOB that ever lived. Another nephew called him a pretty good old boy. He says Roy killed 2 men at different times that he caught with his wife but he doubts the Indians. One thing everyone remembers and agrees upon is that he was never seen without his 2 little dogs.

For many years before his death, he and his wife lived apart but never divorced. Have never heard that he left any descendents." (Sent to Patty Onek from Fern, Dalene and Kenneth Kruse, in December 1998. It was given to them by someone who had a Quimbey book about the family, we know of several errors in the information, but this story seems reasonable).
