Notes for MARTHA ANN CHUMBLEY:

Source: Cyndi from Chumbley-L Mail list. In an interview of Martha Chumbley Thomas Andrews, "When she was three years of age her parents moved to Russell County, Kentucky, a distance of about thirty miles. (From Pulaski Co., Ky.) She remembers very distinctly this trip as her father owned a very stubborn mule that he wanted to take along. The only member of the family that could ride him was her father and as the mule would not lead when tied to the wagon the only thing was for her father to ride the mule. As they made ready to start Martha Ann set up a cry to ride with her father on the mule. At last her wish was granted, so for this reason she remembers this trip very well. Her first school was built of logs; the roof was made of branches and sod placed over this; the logs were chinked with mud. A long broad board rested on the pegs inserted in the logs along two side of the room." (Cyndi notes, the rest of the interview is not included as the page ends and evidently the person copying for some reason didn't think I would want the rest).

Notes for MILES LEROY "ROY" QUIMBEY:

"Many stories are told about him and none of them were good. He did serve time in prison but am not sure for what offense. He shot a man for cheating him out of money believed to be at a card game. He killed a man he caught in bed with his wife and paid a man money to bring him the scalp of someone who ran instead of staying to help him fight indians.

I was told by his niece that he always wore a big overcoat and a big hat and that is the way I remember him when he attended the funeral of his nephew Homer Quimby (my uncle) I was almost 10 years old and had never heard of him before (I think he had just gotten out of prison) and it was the only time I ever saw him. One of his half brothers, George, refused to attend his funeral until other family members convinced him that he should. George believed that Roy had hastened their fathers death. One of his nephews called him the meanest SOB that ever lived. Another nephew called him a pretty good old boy. He says Roy killed 2 men at different times that he caught with his wife but he doubts the Indians. One thing everyone remembers and agrees upon is that he was never seen without his 2 little dogs.

For many years before his death, he and his wife lived apart but never divorced. Have never heard that he left any descendents." (Sent to Patty Onek from Fern, Dalene and Kenneth Kruse, in December 1998. It was given to them by someone who had a Quimbey book about the family, we know of several errors in the information, but this story seems reasonable).

Patty Onek remembers some of these childhood memories told to her, by her mother, Rosa Evelyn Ruch, Lefforge, Burns.

Rosie said, "I loved Frank with all of my heart, he was my favorite brother. We always did things together. He was a big tease and very ornery, you could not help but laugh at him. Every day to and from school, he would find a snake and chase it into a hole in the dirt bank. The tail of the snake would be sticking out and he would be pulling on it, but the head would be coming out of a hole up above. I would scream at him, to warn him about the danger of getting bitten. I would not leave him though I was so afraid of snakes. He would keep pulling on the tail of the snake until he got it out, then he would chase me all the way home with the snake. Dad would spank him and the very next day he would do the same thing all over again!" "Frank and I carried water to the rabbits Dad raised to sell. We got up very early to do our chores before school. Dad gave us a sick calf to raise and promised us we could have a wagon if we were able to get it well. We managed to save the calf and got the wagon, but we never got to enjoy it as Roy wanted the wagon and he got it. We had thought it would make our work easier if we could pull the buckets of water to the rabbit's by using the wagon. We never got to use it and we never forgot how unfair we thought the "deal" turned out to be. Dad realized how unhappy we were so the next time we doctored a sick calf we got a rifle and Roy was too young to use it!"

"I could upset Mom without trying, she would be so angry and I would run around the table, she would try to catch me and I would get her to laughing. I was the only one who got away with that trick!"

"When Patty and Dickie were born, Dad sent both Frank and Chuck, telegrams, telling them the babies were born, he said, "one was a teapot with a spout and one was a teapot without a spout!" On the first telegrams he didn't tell them which one had the boy and which one had the girl, but he sent telegrams later that day and told them!"

"Frank and Chuck both were called up with the National Guards and when they were in Little Rock, Arkansas, Lucille and I went to stay with them. Dickie and Patty were only about six weeks old. Frank would take them out in the buggy for a walk after supper, two nice elderly ladies lived near us and he told them the babies were his and were twins!! When I found out he told them that I went and told them the truth and they got a big laugh out of that."

"Patty would always get Dickie in trouble, he would follow her wherever she went and then he would get a spanking too. He never left the yard alone but if Patty was with him she would lead him off. When she got mad she would bite him and I would try to get him to bite her and he just would not do it. Patty got lots of spankings!"
